REFLECTION:

Mission Sunday is a day when we are reminded of an important dimension of our lives as Christians: we exist to bear witness to Christ. That's why it is said that the Church by its very nature is missionary. If a Christian is not captivated by Christ and therefore not eager to make him known and loved everywhere, it clearly indicates that his/her faith is still incomplete, partial and immature.

Our desire to make Christ known and loved is an accurate indicator of the depth of our faith. Faith and mission go hand in hand. The stronger the faith the greater must be the need we feel to communicate it, share it and bear witness to it. Faith is strengthened when it is given to others. Missionary zeal is the surest antidote against a crisis of faith.

As a matter of fact, our obligation towards the mission does not begin and end with the financial contributions we make. Our prayer and sacrifice go a long way in fostering the kingdom of God on earth. We preach all the time by the way we live our faith. So personal example too is an important dimension. If we manifest a joyous or joyful experience of the living presence of God in our lives we will automatically be living witnesses to Christ.

If we want to be true witnesses to Christ we must be docile and open to the actions of the Holy Spirit in our lives.

Then we will radiate Christ by an integral faith, patient and loving charity and unfailing hope. May we become the light of the world and salt of the earth and thus show by our life what Christianity stands for.
